33. John Thomas⁴ Blunk (Andrew Jackson³, Andrew Jackson², William¹) was born Jun 1825 in Indiana, USA, and died 26 Jun 1914 in Daviess Co, KY. He married Catherine Mowrer²³ 16 Jun 1853 in Harrison Co., IN. She was born Abt. 1828 in Indiana, USA, and died Bef. 07 Jun 1900.

Notes for Catherine Mowrer:

Decendants of George Mowrer <http://webpages.charter.net/davemcmo/pafg03.htm#22359>

14. Catherine MOWRER (Joseph , George) was born about 1828 in ,, Indiana. She died before 7 Jun 1900.

Found in 1847 Harrison County, Indiana School Enumeration. Catherine was in the household of a "George Row" (George Mowrer?) with her brother, Ephraim Mowrer. She was 18 years old at the time. This is assumed to be their grandfather's home, George Mowrer. Catherine and Ephraim's father, Joseph, was living in Gibson County, Indiana at this time. Reason unknown. Unidentified mother apparently had died. There are people living in Harrison County at this time with the surname of "Row" according to census data but no one with the first name of "George."

Surname misspelled as "Mowror" in a Harrison County, Indiana marriage index.

Based on census data, Catherine apparently died sometime between the 1880 and 1900 U.S. Census.

Catherine married John Thomas BLUNK son of Andrew Jackson BLUNK and Mary E. JOHNSTON on 16 Jun 1853 in , Harrison Co., Indiana. John was born in Jun 1825 in ,, Indiana. He died on 26 Jun 1914 in , Daviess Co., Kentucky.

Name shown as "Thomas" in the 1910 U.S. Census. Apparently a middle name since his name always shown as "John" in other public records.

There is a "Julia Fleming" , age 7, born in Indiana, in John & Catherine's household during the 1880 U.S. Census who was shown as "adopted." It can not be determined from this census data if this child was legally adopted by John and Catherine Blunk or just informally raised in this household.

John and Catherine had the following children:

- + 61 M i Andrew Henson BLUNK was born in Aug 1854. He died before 26 Apr 1910.
- + 62 M ii Robert Ira BLUNK was born in Oct 1858. He died on 19 Jun 1932.
- + 63 M iii Joseph William BLUNK was born in Jan 1861. He died on 7 Jul 1929.

Notes for MaKenna Marianna Bernice Williams:

BIRTH: Holly lived alone in a one bedroom apartment. She was new and had not met many neighbors. She began to go in labor the morning of Oct 1, 2000 and could not reach her boyfriend Ken. She found a neighbor to take her to the hospital and was told she was not dilated enough and sent her home. Holly's labor pains grew closer and call me (her mother). I told her to call for an ambulance. Before they got there she had already begun to give birth. The paramedics had to bust the front door that she had locked to get to her upstairs bedroom. She gave birth to MaKenna on her bedroom floor.

23. David L McMonigle, Decendants Of George Mowrer, John Thomas Blunk, Decendants of George Mowrer <http://webpages.charter.net/davemcmo/pafg03.htm#22359> 14. Catherine MOWRER (Joseph, George) was born about 1828 in . Indiana. She died before 7 Jun 1900. Found in 1847 Harrison County, Indiana School Enumeration. Catherine was in the household of a "George Row" (George Mowrer?) with her brother, Ephraim Mowrer. She was 18 years old at the time. This is assumed to be their grandfather's home, George Mowrer. Catherine and Ephraim's father, Joseph, was living in Gibson County, Indiana at this time. Reason unknown. Unidentified mother apparently had died. There are people living in Harrison County at this time with the surname of "Row" according to census data but no one with the first name of "George." Surname misspelled as "Mowror" in a Harrison County, Indiana marriage index. Based on census data, Catherine apparently died sometime between the 1880 and 1900 U.S. Census. Catherine married John Thomas BLUNK son of Andrew Jackson BLUNK and Mary E. JOHNSTON on 16 Jun 1853 in . Harrison Co., Indiana. John was born in Jun 1825 in . Indiana. He died on 26 Jun 1914 in . Daviess Co., Kentucky. Name shown as "Thomas" in the 1910 U.S. Census. Apparently a middle name since his name always shown as "John" in other public records. There is a "Julia Fleming", age 7, born in Indiana, in John & Catherine's household during the 1880 U.S. Census who was shown as "adopted." It can not be determined from this census data if this child was legally adopted by John and Catherine Blunk or just informally raised in this household. John and Catherine had the following children: + 61 M i Andrew Henson BLUNK was born in Aug 1854. He died before 26 Apr 1910. + 62 M ii Robert Ira BLUNK was born in Oct 1858. He died on 19 Jun 1932. + 63 M iii Joseph William BLUNK was born in Jan 1861. He died on 7 Jul 1929. .

Cols. James C. Veatch, William. H. Morgan James S. Wright; Lieut.-Cols., William H. Morgan, John W. Foster John Rheinlander, James S. Wright, William H. Crenshaw; Maj.s, John W. Foster, John Rheinlander, John T. Walker, Victor C. Larkin, James S. Wright, William H. Crenshaw, James T. Reed. This regiment was organized at Evansville in July 1861, and was mustered in Aug. 19. It left the state Aug. 26, and was in camp at St. Louis until Sept. 14, moving from there to Jefferson City and thence to Georgetown. It marched to Springfield with Fremont's forces and back to Otterville 240 miles, in 16 days. It remained in the vicinity of Otterville until December, when it moved with Pope's division south of Warrensburg, forming part of the force that captured 1,300 of the enemy at Blackwater. The 25th guarded the prisoners to St. Louis and went into Benton Barracks until Feb. 2, 1862. It was sent with the expedition against Fort Donelson and joined in the first attack, losing 16 killed and 80 wounded. It was part of the force which stormed and captured the outer works the next day and occupied the fort after its surrender. It left for Pittsburg landing on Mar. 5, reaching there on the 18th and in the battle of Shiloh, lost 27 killed and 122 wounded. Col. Veatch was appointed brigadier-general on April 28, and Lieut.-Col. Morgan succeeded him as colonel. The regiment was in the siege of Corinth and on June 10 occupied Grand Junction. It moved for Memphis July 17 and remained there until Sept. 6, engaged in scouting and hunting guerrillas. It then occupied Bolivar until Oct. 4, when it moved with Hurlbut's division to cut off Price and Van Dorn, meeting their forces at Hatchie River and engaging in a short but fierce battle, in which the regiment lost 3 killed and 76 wounded. It then moved to northern Mississippi, and six companies under Col. Morgan were stationed at Davis' Mill on Wolf River where they were attacked by Van Dorn with a large force of mounted infantry. They fought so fiercely that the enemy was compelled to leave the field, after losing 23 killed, many wounded and some prisoners. The remaining four companies were distributed along the line of railroad from Grand Junction to Holly Springs. The regiment was on provost duty at Memphis from Jan. 14, until Nov. 1863, then guarded the railroad between Grand Junction and Moscow until Jan. 28, 1864 and then joined Sherman's army on the raid through Mississippi to Meridian and return. It reenlisted at Canton, Miss., Feb. 19, 1864 and at the expiration of its furlough proceeded to Decatur, Ala., where it remained until Aug. 4, participating in several skirmishes with Roddey's cavalry. It joined the 4th division, 16th corps, before Atlanta, and was actively engaged in the siege from Aug. 8 to .26. It was in the engagement at Jonesboro joined in pursuit of Hood's army, attacked and routed the enemy at Snake Creek Gap, then returned and accompanied the army to Savannah, and participated in the investment of that city. It remained in that vicinity until Jan. 4, 1865, when it moved with the 11th corps to Beaufort, S. C. going from there to Pocatigo. It moved on the 30th for Goldsboro, N. C., being engaged at Rivers' Bridge, Binnaker's bridge, Fayetteville and Bentonville. It reached Goldsboro March 24, marched thence to Raleigh, and after Johnston's surrender started for Washington which place was reached on May 17. The regiment was then transferred to Louisville and was mustered out at that place, July 17, 1865. Its original strength was 1,052; gain by recruits, 681; reenlistments, 282; total, 2,015. Loss by death, 307; desertion, 56; unaccounted for, 235. Source: The Union Army, vol. 3 Battles Fought Fought on 16 December 1861 at Blackwater, MO. Fought on 15 February 1862 at Fort Donelson, TN. 49. David L McMonigle, Descendants Of George Mowrer, Robert found living in Christian County, Kentucky as a patient in Western State Hospital during the 1930 U.S. Census. He was a widower at this time. His age shown as "61" which results in an estimated birth year of "1869" which disagrees with his reported age at death in 1932 of "72" in a Kentucky Death Index results in an estimated birth year of "1860." His birth year shown as "1858" in the 1900 U.S. Census. Conflicting ages and reported birth year make it difficult to determine precisely what year he was born. It is assumed in his case the 1900 census is the most accurate. He has a brother reported as being born in "1861."

Adultry. This is the story told to me by my mother, Rose. Floyd and Rose were having problems and mother wanted a divorce and there was no way she was backing out so she told the courts that she was being abused. The divorce was granted. The second time, Dad was in Korea. Mother was having a very hard time making ends meet with the money she had to live on and had a breakdown. Mother's half sister, Linda threatened to have us kids taken from her by the courts. She was very angry and went after Linda and threatened to kill her if her kids were taken from her. Mother was arrested and Dad sent back to the U.S. on an emergency leave. Dad was going to make her bail, but stubborn mother said she would allow him to do this if he would get her a divorce. Dad didn't want to say she was abusive as it would hurt his Army career. So mother suggested he tell them she committed adultery and her sister, Linda would back their story. The divorce was final for the second time. Dad went back to Korea to finish his year there. When he returned he was stationed to California and tried to win back mother again, but she didn't want to go back.

108. John Dillinger: Bank Robber or Robin Hood?, Chapter 7 1st half, Escape Ignoring the growing criticism from the photograph, Estill set about preparing his case against Dillinger who was arraigned on February 9, 1934. The tiny courtroom was mobbed with reporters and photographers. Security was beefed up in the belief that the remaining Dillinger gang member still at large, Red Hamilton, was putting his own gang together to come and spring his partner. In addition to the local security already in place, several members of the Indiana National Guard were requested to help out. John Dillinger's arsenal (CORBIS) Before Dillinger even made it to Crown Point, the wheels of corruption were turning. Meyer Bogue had been a fellow inmate of Dillinger's at Michigan City prison. Invited to escape with the others during the September 1933 jailbreak, Bogue declined, having just three months left on his sentence. Bogue knew Hymie Cohen and Sonny Sheetz, leaders of the East Chicago, Indiana underworld. It was rumored that the two were familiar with Dillinger. In {Dillinger: The Untold Story}, a book in which William J. Helmer completes the original work of George Russell Girardin, the writers claim, "Dillinger had bought protection from him (Sheetz) in the past, and made payment from bank robberies that were arranged through East Chicago." Dillinger sleeps on the train, in police custody, coming back from the west (CORBIS) After Dillinger was captured in Tucson, Bogue approached Chicago attorney Louis Piquette and told him, "I think I can get you to be Dillinger's lawyer. I'm sure Dillinger doesn't have a lawyer and he'll be glad to take whoever they (Cohen and Sheetz) recommend." After Dillinger arrived at Crown Point, Sam Cahoon, a trusty at the prison, passed a business card to him. "Call no attorney but this one. Gank raising necessary funds for defense." The name of the attorney on the card - Louis Piquette. The son of a blacksmith, Piquette was described as a "short, chubby, middle-aged man of vitality and charm." His iron-gray hair was styled into a three-inch high pompadour. He never attended law school, but instead was self-taught as he waited tables and tended bar. He failed the Illinois bar exam more than a dozen times before he finally passed. He then served a short term as an assistant prosecutor for the city of Chicago. His talent was in his courtroom performances where his magnetic personality, melodramatic speeches, and emotional appeals fascinated jurors. A friend once advised him to stop taking on so many criminal clients. "Why?" Piquette asked him,

"They're the only ones who have money these days." In the northwest corner of Indiana there are three counties, which touch the southern tip of Lake Michigan. The western-most is Lake County, which nestles up to Cook County just across the border in Illinois. Lake County contains the cities of East Chicago and Gary. Twenty miles south, almost smack dab in the center of the county is the city of Crown Point with its prison. In the eastern-most county, bordering the lake, wrapped 30 miles away from Gary, is Michigan City. During the February 9 arraignment Piquette asked for and received a delay of 30 days to prepare his case, Judge William Murray, assigned to hear the case, set a March 12 date for the trial to begin. On February 12 Prosecutor Estill requested that Dillinger be held at Michigan City prison until the trial started. After an impassioned argument, Judge Murray refused to have Dillinger removed from Crown Point. It was a decision that would come back to haunt him. On March 3, the first of three events occurred which would etch the name of John Dillinger in the criminal history books for all time. The facts surrounding this event are questionable. However, on that morning Dillinger secured a gun, whether it was a wooden gun he carved himself, a wooden gun smuggled into him, or possibly even a real gun smuggled into him will never be known. It was a local joke in Crown Point that even the fabled Houdini could not get out of the "escape-proof" Crown Point prison, but Dillinger was in the process of doing just that. At 9:00 o'clock in the morning, using the wooden gun, he began his methodical escape by locking up several trustees, a jail attendant, a deputy sheriff, and the prison warden - each time getting valuable information from them about the prison's layout. Dillinger knew he couldn't go far with the firepower he had and using the deputy sheriff, Ernest Blunk, he now went to the warden's office where he took two Thompson sub-machine guns. Herbert Youngblood (CORBIS) Dillinger now marched back toward the cells with Blunk, another trusty and a national guardsman. Once back at the cells Dillinger asked the prisoners there if any wanted to go with him. A black man, Herbert Youngblood, awaiting trial for murder, elected to go and was handed one of the machineguns. Two other inmates also accepted the invitation and the group headed off to the rear of the .

109. John Dillinger-Bank Robber or Robin Hood?. Chapter 7 last half. Two other inmates also accepted the invitation and the group headed off to the rear of the prison where the garage was located. On the way there, Dillinger collected three vigilante farmers, who had volunteered their efforts to guard the famous prisoner. Once in the garage, the two would-be escapee inmates got cold feet and locked themselves in a washroom with the three farmers. In the garage, Dillinger captured an assortment of people including the jail cook, kitchen helpers, several more trustees and the warden's mother-in-law. While Youngblood held the group at gunpoint, Dillinger sought out an automobile for the escape. Asking garage mechanic Edward Saager which car was the fastest, he was told it was the sheriff's automobile. After pulling the ignition wires from the other cars in the garage, Dillinger, Youngblood, deputy sheriff Blunk and the mechanic Saager climbed into Sheriff Lillian Holley's car. With Blunk driving, the four calmly left the prison. The most celebrated prisoner in the country had escaped from the "escape-proof" prison without one shot being fired. After getting out of town, Dillinger ordered Blunk to stop. He handed Saager $4 so the two could get back to town and apologized that he didn't have more to spare. Before they drove off, Dillinger looked at the two hostages standing in the road. He grinned and said, "I'll remember you at Christmas." It was a promise Dillinger wouldn't keep.

J. Edgar Hoover, addresses a conference on crime (CORBIS) Dillinger made one mistake though, by driving the stolen sheriff's car across state lines, from Indiana to Illinois, he had violated a federal law, thus inviting J. Edgar Hoover's FBI to join the manhunt. In Chicago, Captain John Stege, who had just disbanded the "Dillinger Squad," was alerted to be on the lookout for the sheriff's automobile. It seems only fitting that in a climax to the day's events that the wrong license plate number was passed along to the police Captain by an excited Crown Point official. In the wake of Dillinger's escape from Crown Point, Judge Murray impaneled a grand jury to investigate. On March 8, he discharged them after discovering that the foreman was the owner of the garage from which Dillinger stole Sheriff Holley's automobile, and was the employer of Edward Saager. A second grand jury was convened and, on April 3, they returned with their results. Paramount in their findings was the fact that, "Judge Murray's failure to permit the transfer of Dillinger to Michigan City was the prime cause for the escape!" The jurors other findings concluded the escape was successful due to: "(1) the coolness, alertness and reputation of Dillinger himself; (2) the help of Herbert Youngblood; (3) laxity of jail officials; (4) collusion of Cahoon and Blunk (both of whom were indicted); (5) an indifferent and unreliable trusty working as a turnkey." Blunk had wavered from his tale of Dillinger having a wooden gun and later claimed that it was a real gun. The jurors decided that, at least when the jailbreak began, that the gun was made of wood. Blunk quickly made the observation, "I think that I'm going to be made the goat in this case." Judge Murray was incensed. In Dillinger: A Short and Violent Life, by author Robert Cromie and the late Dillinger historian, Joseph Pinkston, they reveal: "Judge Murray...demanded to know why he should have paid any heed to a 'prosecutor who had just finished hugging Dillinger.'" "Judge Murray also pointed out that he had no power to transfer Dillinger unless the prisoner's life was endangered by mob violence. He added, "The report is worded in language not contemplated in law. It is lacking in the respect due courts of justice and judicial officers, and is particularly disrespectful to this particular court and its judge, and contains language which scandalizes the court." The judge promptly initiated contempt proceedings against the entire grand jury. A few days later he directed that the findings of the grand jury be "expunged" and he discharged the members. Blunk and Cahoon were eventually exonerated. The town itself was left to carry out a sentence of ridicule from the rest of the country. Letters arrived at the Crown Point post office addressed to Wooden Gun, Indiana and Clown Point, Indiana.
